No true bill issued in fatal shooting

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

LOUISA – The Lawrence County Grand Jury found insufficient evidence to charge anyone with the fatal shooting of James Baisden, who died from two gunshot wounds in May.

No charges were filed after the May 30 incident, but instead the case was presented to the grand jury.

Baisden, 49, of Cedgap suffered one shot in the left arm and the other in his right side, Lawrence County Sheriff Garrett Roberts said after the shooting.

According to a press release issued by the sheriff's office following the incident, the shooting occurred in the Woodlands Drive area of Cedgap off Rt. 32, just west of Louisa.

Lawrence County sheriff's deputies conducted interviews to determine what led to the shooting. According to a press release at the time of the incident, Terry Hensley and Rodney T. Tinder were working on a rental cabin on Woodlands Drive. Hensley stated that Baisden came from a wooded area and said he was going to shoot Hensley and Tinder, and there was a brief struggle.

Doctor ordered detained prior to sentencing in drug case

by Tony Fyffe
BSN MANAGING EDITOR

PIKEVILLE — A judge last week ordered a doctor to surrender himself to a federal correctional medical facility pending his sentencing on a drug charge involving a former Paintsville pain clinic.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Edward B. Atkins' decision came during a telephonic hearing last Wednesday for Dr. Rano Bofill, who pleaded guilty in March to conspiracy to unlawfully dispense Oxycodone when he worked at Care More Pain Management.

Bofill's attorney had asked that the doctor forego mandatory pre-sentencing incarceration due to "very ill health," saying that incarceration would "place him at significant risk," according to Atkins' order. The attorney said Bofill is scheduled for an appointment with a West Virginia physician to "further diagnose and treat medical conditions" Bofill is experiencing, Atkins said.

An Alabama doctor said in an affidavit tendered to the court prior to Wednesday's hearing that Bofill's "dementia, naïve and conflict avoidant personality, poor coping skills, and the unique and intense personal and culturally based shame/humiliation of pre-sentencing incarceration" would put Bofill at "significant risk for psychiatric decompensation" prior to his Aug. 26 sentencing, Atkins' order said.

PIKEVILLE — A Floyd County man pleaded not guilty Monday to lying during the vote-buying trial of the former mayor of Martin and to accepting payment for voting in the 2012 election.

A Sept. 29 trial date was set for Ray D. Hagans, 42, of Martin, after he entered the plea in U.S. District Court at Pikeville.

Hagans was indicted in June on charges of making false declarations before a grand jury/court and accepting payment for voting.

The indictment says Hagans, "having taken an oath to testify truthfully" in a case against former Martin Mayor Ruth Thomasine Robinson; her husband, James "Red" Robinson; and her step-son, James Steven Robinson," did knowingly make false material declarations."

According to the indictment, Hagans testified May 8 in U.S. District Court at Pikeville that current Martin Mayor Sam Howell and another man, Antho-

Lawrence court reduces speed on two county roadways

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

LOUISA — Lawrence County Fiscal Court members approved a speed reduction on two county roads and appointed new members to two county boards at Monday's meeting.

The speed limit for Horse-shoe Road was changed to 10 miles per hour and the speed limit for Crestley Branch Road was reduced to 25 miles per hour.

Connie Queen was unanimously approved for appointment to the Fred M. Vinson Museum Board and Lynette Miller was unanimously approved for the Lawrence County Tourism Board.

Court members also approved Jane Branham as Pine Hill Cemetery record keeper in a contract labor position to be paid $100 per month for the amount of gas and time she must use when providing the service.

Magistrate Bill Lemaster made a motion approving the sum, which was seconded by John Lemaster, with all in favor.

Eric Gibson approached fiscal court members to ask that they remove a portion of Butternut Drive from the county road system.

Lawrence County Judge-Executive John Osborne explained that County Attorney Mike Hogan said the removal needs to be in writing and that they would send people to inspect the property to make sure nobody else would be effected, then return to let the fiscal court know what they found.

"Should I come back next month?" Gibson asked. "Do I need to bring my deed or anything?"

Osborne said that Hogan would have that information but that he could come back to the next meeting if he wanted to.

Court members approved a request from the Septemberfest Committee for a contribution of $1,000.

Magistrate John Lemaster made the motion to approve the request, which was seconded by Magistrate Bill Lemaster with all in favor.

Osborne also asked approval for the first reading of an electrical inspector ordinance.

"There was no change, it is the same as we passed in November, but we have to do an ordinance," Osborne explained. "The fees are now $75, and it's recommended that it be anywhere from $100 to $125. It costs $75 unless it is a commercial inspection, and that would cost more."

A motion approving the first reading was made by Bill Lemaster and seconded by John Lemaster, with all in favor.

Magistrate Morris Howard asked for an update on the repair of the county road grader. Osborne explained that the brakes are finished and other parts are ordered and that it would be finished shortly. Osborne also said that it would have been finished sooner, but that they were obtaining used parts instead of purchasing new ones in an effort to save money and that they were sorry for having taken so long.

Howard also asked for an update on the progress of county ditches being pulled.

Osborne explained that road department personnel were told each day to pull the ditches unless it is too wet.

"If they are in your district, go behind them and look and if you see they should have pulled a ditch and didn't, and it isn't too wet, let me know and I'll send them back out there," Osborne said.

Court members approved unanimously to allow the newly established Kayak Club to use Chapman Park facilities.

Osborne said that they are a "good clean cut bunch of people," with children involved and that they would only probably use the location two or three times a month, but that it would give people in the area something else to do.

County Court Clerk Chris Jobe was authorized to advertise for bids on two county bridges that are both located on Rt. 1760 and court members also approved a declaration of surplus on three old trucks, which Osborne said they need to get rid of.

Officials unanimously authorized Osborne to seek funds for fiscal year 2015-2016 coal severance projects.

"We can put in for it, and hopefully we will get it," Osborne said.

In other business, the fiscal court also approved the minutes from the June 16 meeting, the treasurer's request, payment of the bills, the treasurer's report and to accept the treasurer's settlement.

Baisden retained possession of the gun, reloaded and then pointed it at Hensley, who jumped over an embankment to get away from Baisden, the release said.

Baisden then pointed the gun at Tinder and fired, but missed him. He was reloading the gun when Tinder said he feared for his life and pulled a 9mm handgun, firing at Baisden and striking him two times.

Baisden was pronounced dead at the scene and his body was sent on to Frankfort for an autopsy.

"Alcohol is believed to be a factor in Baisden's behavior," the release said.

CASE: Doctor ordered to be detained

Federal prosecutors argued that there are "no exceptional circumstances" that should prevent pre-sentence incarceration and that there was "no showing that the level of care the Defendant would receive if incarcerated prior to sentencing would be inadequate," Atkins said. Prosecutors contacted the Federal Medical Center in Lexington, which would be able to house Bofill until his sentencing, Atkins said.

Atkins agreed with prosecutors and ordered Bofill to surrender himself to the Federal Medical Center within 48 hours from the date of his order.

"So long as the Defendant has access to sufficient medical care while in custody," the judge wrote, "his incarceration is warranted."

Bofill's attorney filed a motion seeking a stay in the pre-sentencing confinement, but U.S. District Judge Amul R. Thapar denied the request, saying the doctor "does not present evidence that imprisonment, generally, might subject him to 'significant psychiatric risk.'"

"Unfortunately, in our imperfect system, such a risk falls far short of 'unique,' 'out of the ordinary,' and 'exceptional.'"

Court records say that Bofill conspired with Care More Pain Management owners Tammy Cantrell and Shelby Lackey to distribute thousands of Oxycodone pills to patients without a legitimate medical purpose from January 2009 to December 2012.

3 Ways to Dig Up Dirt on People

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

We all do it. You meet someone casually or professionally. After the exchange of pleasantries, you are compelled to bring out your inner Sherlock Holmes.

Hopping online, you are ready to validate or discredit this person. The problem is you need to use the right sites or else you'll be duped, scammed or worse.

1. People search sites
If you search the Internet using only a person's name, you're going to eventually end up at a people search site like PeekYou, Spokeo, White Pages Neighbors or any of the other few dozen around.

These sites pull publicly available information about a person into one spot. You can find a person's age, what social media accounts they have, where they live now, where they've lived in the past, their relatives' names and quite a bit more.

There are a few catches, naturally. You have to pay to get more than just the basic information, and even then it isn't always right. These sites are also loaded with advertisements that look like legitimate links. Information from people with similar names often gets mixed together.

Recently, a caller to my national radio show explained his name and a completely unrelated person's name ended up in the same profile at a people search site. He was 58. The other person was 29. He owned a consulting business. The other person had a long rap sheet with charges of drug trafficking and theft. After a little digging, I figured out it was a case of identity theft. The search site put this together before the caller did.

Super sleuthing tip: When you search Google, Bing or another search site using only a person's name, be sure to look at the search results past page 1. You might find older web pages that contain information about this person they thought were long gone.

2. Social media
Just about everyone has a social media profile of some kind. Start with Facebook and see if you can find the person's profile. Again, if they have a common name it could take a while.

If they're savvy, they'll have their profile locked down so you can't see much about them. That's OK. Just take a look at the address of their profile in your browser's address bar. See where it says "www.facebook.com/XXXXXXXX"? That XXXXXXXX could be two things. Some people activate Facebook's so-called "vanity URL" feature and it's just their name - usually followed by a number. That's what mine is - www.facebook.com/kimkomando.

However, for some people that XXXXXXXX is their Facebook username. And that's probably the same name they used to create their other accounts on Twitter, Instagram, Google and wherever else.

Just type that username into Google and you'll often find their other accounts. You might find they haven't been as thorough with their privacy settings in other places. Maybe you'll find they have a blog or account in some kind of forum. You never know.

If you run across Instagram pictures, you can run them through a site called The Beat. This can tell you

DOCTORS, HEALTHCARE PROVIDERS, patients and survivors rallied to celebrate Cancer Survivor's Day in Paintsville July 19. The Highlands Cancer Center hosted the free event, which included entertainment, food, speakers, games and prizes. More than 100 people attended, including more than 43 survivors who registered. Organizers thanked Highlands Regional Medical Center, Food City, volunteers and multiple businesses that donated items to our raffle to make the event successful. Dr. Kirti Jain said days like this are important for cancer survivors to not only meet other survivors but to receive encouragement from professionals in the field. "It is important to celebrate because the prevailing perception about cancer among people is once you get cancer you're pretty much dead," said oncologist Dr. Kirti Jain, "And that perception has to be changed, because most of the cancer is already curable. Seventy percent of all invasive cancer that we find today is curable. And the remaining 30 percent we have cured in 20 years."

EKSC camp explores the Science of Bubbleology

PRESTONSBURG — Making the perfect bubble is an art.

Children at the East Kentucky Science Center and Planetarium (EKSC) learned a lot about the science of bubbles July 9 during a bubbleology camp.

The one-day event was open to children kindergarten through third grade and is part of an extensive outreach of programs offered by the EKSC this summer.

"I love making big bubbles," said 6-year-old Barrett Lemaster. "I want to do this when I get home."

Heather Wheeler, an instructional specialist at the EKSC, said campers learned the science of bubbles and air.

"They learned about the various gases in the air and the various weights of air," said Wheeler. "The children are always so eager to learn and the bubbles make it especially fun for them."

Five-year-old Emily Bailey was especially excited about how camp staff helped her develop a bubble-making device from string and drinking straws.

"I can't wait to do this at home," Bailey said, smiling.

Campers learned about dry ice and made a device from drinking bottles and socks to make a bubble snake.

"We want students to understand that learning is fun," said Wheeler. "I think we enjoy the camp as much as the children do."

The EKSC, which is located on the Prestonsburg campus of Big Sandy Community and Technical College, has two camps left this summer — a LEGO My Robot camp for children grades fourth through eighth (July 29) and a two-day Lost in Space camp (July 15-16) for children grades third through eighth.

The EKSC is open Tuesday through Friday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays from noon to 4 p.m. Admission is $6 for adults and $4 for children and includes admission into the Energee exhibit, which features interactive energy concepts about coal, natural gas, kinetic energy, light and more, and laser shows.

For more information on the EKSC, call (606) 889-8260.

IDB Interns meet with Morehead President Dr. Wayne Andrews

by Micah Davis
SENIOR INTERN

On Tuesday June 17, President Wayne Andrews of Morehead State University addressed the Inez Deposit Bank interns.

Dr. Andrews is a New England native who now serves as the 13th president of Morehead State University. He is a graduate of Fitchburg State College in Massachusetts, where he earned a B.S. degree in 1974, and of West Virginia University, where he received a master's in 1976 and a doctorate in 1977.

Reflecting on this year's theme, "Fifty Years Since the War on Poverty," he addressed the state that Eastern Kentucky is in now compared to 50 years ago. Dr. Andrews noted that nationally, poverty has declined by one-third since the war on poverty was declared right in our own small town.

Dr. Andrews inspired the interns to have an entrepreneurial spirit.

"You are the future and it is up to the youth of your community to help your area prosper and grow."

In order to accomplish this goal we must be willing to further our education. After gaining our education we must be willing to use that new knowledge to better our town by providing more job opportunities. Dr. Andrews noted that since 1964, graduation rates and college attendance rates in Eastern Kentucky have improved tremendously.

Not only did Dr. Andrews reflect on the War on Poverty, but also on the recent SOAR summit. Among the topics addressed at SOAR were where our major problems are and what should our money be spent towards. Two of the answers Dr. Andrew discussed were public education and job opportunities.

"What can we do to improve public education?" President Andrews asked of the group. "We need to have prepared teachers, rigorous courses, and early childhood development," he summarized.

In order to provide more job opportunities we must consider our resources around us, and also think about what type of businesses would most benefit the people around us. He left the interns with the thought, "What can you bring back to Martin County?" In order to improve Martin County, and provide more job opportunities, "we must keep an entrepreneurial mind set and also not be afraid to think outside the box."

LinkedIn is a social network for professionals and job seekers. It's a great place to look up employment history.

Super sleuthing tip: Not having much luck finding the person? Type their name into "google.com/images" along with the state or city where they live. Scroll through the results and you'll often find one or two social account profile pictures you can click to get to their accounts.

3. Public records sites

People search sites and social media will give you an overview of a person, but what about their darker history?

Once you've gotten the locations where they've lived - usually from a people search site - you can look up public court records. Either go to Google and type in "court records" followed by the city and state, or take a look at a site like Search Systems that gives you links to public record sites.

You can find out if the person has traffic violations or more serious crimes. Again, be careful because you might come across records of people with the same name. Don't automatically assume the record is about the person you're researching unless you can match up their birth date.

Of course, the big one to check is if the person appears in a sex offender database. For that, you can look in the Department of Justice's Dru Sjodin National Sex Offender Public Website.

Super sleuthing tip: If you want to look up whether or not someone has a mortgage or two, check out Mortgage Electronic Registration Systems. It's actually kind of scary when you try it.

Use the sites to look up yourself. You need to know what other people are going to find if they go digging for dirt on you.

If you're checking into someone for any kind of paid position, under the Fair Credit Reporting Act you have to use a Consumer Reporting Agency. You can find a list of them at <http://www.komando.com/downloads/2173/background-checks-the-right-way>.

It's important to take anything you find with a grain of salt. Information on the Internet isn't perfect, so always verify your information before acting on it. After all, you wouldn't want someone jumping to conclusions about you.

Drawing complete for elk hunting areas

FRANKFORT - Those drawn for a 2014 Kentucky elk hunt can now go online to www.fw.ky.gov to see their assigned hunting area.

Kentucky's popular quota elk hunts are carried out in two stages: initial selection then a second random drawing to determine the hunting area.

Kentucky has five hunting areas within its 16-county elk restoration zone in the southeastern part of the state. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is sending letters to hunters this week to notify each person of their assigned hunting area.

Hunters may also go online to check this information. Applicants must provide their 19-digit confirmation number or their Social Security number and birth date to check the assignment.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife is issuing 1,000 general quota hunt permits this year, along with 10 youth-only permits. The department received nearly 70,000 applications from as far away as Hawaii, Texas and Canada for the 2014 elk hunt.

Archery season for bull elk opens Sept. 20. Firearms seasons for bull elk are held in October while firearms seasons for cow elk are held in December. Hunters may go online to the department website for specific season dates.

Kentucky began its elk restoration program in 1997. Hunting began in 2001 with the issuance of 12 permits. Since that time, Kentucky's elk herd has grown past 10,000, making it the largest east of the Rocky Mountains.

UPike bowler Simpson earns spot on Team USA

PIKEVILLE — University of Pikeville women's bowling junior KT Simpson is the newest member of Team USA after taking fourth place in the 2014 Junior Gold Tournament that began with a staggering field of 630 bowlers last week.

By advancing all the way to the semifinals, Simpson earned a spot on the national team, joining Kayla Bandy, Kim Yioulos, Jennifer Wright, Ashley Galante and Sarah Germano as former Pikeville student-athletes to make Team USA.

For Simpson, it's been a successful last few months which started with her leading UPIKE to the finals of the xBowling ITC's for a second straight season. The Boise, Idaho native was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player despite the Bears falling to Robert Morris (Ill.) in the finals.

At the Junior Gold's, Simpson advanced through three rounds of qualifying, followed by two more rounds of advances before taking part in the final match-play bracket.

Competing in Buffalo, N.Y., Simpson defeated Jessica Melott 369-350 in the first round and Chenoa Rhoades 412-317 in the second, before losing 401-385 to eventual national champion Breanna Clemmer in the semifinals.

THE ALICE LLOYD College men's golf program announced the signing of former Sheldon Clark High School standout Jared Albright, who signed Thursday, July 3, at Stone-Crest Golf Course. "Jared is a solid player who has the ability to compete among the best of the KIAC," Alice Lloyd College coach Dr. Robert Hamilton said. The Alice Lloyd College golf team competes with Asbury, Brescia, Cincinnati Christian, IU East and Point Park in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (KIAC). Point Park is the reigning KIAC champion.
